CRAB ORCHARD.

—Hon. D. B. Edmonson is quite sick with la grippe.

—Jos. C. Singleton, of Barbourville, was in town Saturday.

—Have your property insured in the Phoenix or Etna Insurance Company, J. F. Cummins, Agent.

—The social given by Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Redd, Jr., in honor of Miss Virgie White, was enjoyed by all present.

—The entertainment given by Mrs. Reid's elocution class was quite a success. A good audience and excellent behavior.

—The Crab Orchard High School will open on Tuesday, Jan. 5, 1892. Especial attention will be given to those preparing to teach. J. W. Smith, Prin. 5t.

—Messrs. W. C. Pettus and W. H. Beazley have returned from Louisville, where they bought an elegant line of Xmas goods.

—The Dramatic Club, which is under the management of J. B. Gilkerson, will give an entertainment sometime during the holidays. We don't say that any of the actors are better than Booth or Barrett, or that any of the girls can sing equal to Jenny Lind, or rival Mary Anderson, but no little town can get up a better entertainment than C. O.

—Hon. Fontaine Fox Bobbitt has moved from his historic home, Bugle Monroe, to the farm of his sister, Mrs. Catherine McAlister, and his herd of Shorthorn cattle now roam the blue-grass pastures, and the people of this vicinity are aroused early in the morning by melodious music made by the lowing of his $5,000 Duke.

—There is no truth in the rumor that a Crab Orchard woman had committed suicide, but Sam Dollins shot Pete Whiteley Thursday night, one shot just above the left nipple, the other in the hip. Both are colored, but by the time the report reached the far-off city of Stanford it had changed to a first-class white lady cutting her throat with a razor. Our women are too badly stuck on this place to kill themselves.

—That courtly gentleman, Hon. Henry E. Henson, of Paducah, spent Sunday with friends here. He was the republican nominee for lieutenant governor and a colonel in the Confederate army. We often see those who wore the blue in the democratic ranks, but seldom see one who fought for the Lost Cause in full fellowship with the republicans. We agree with Mr. Henson that the people should vote according to the present issues, and not because Pap fit with Lee or followed Sherman to the sea.

—Mr. J. R. Lawless, of Lexington, but formerly of this place, has returned home, after several days' stay with friends here. We are sure no one who ever returned to C. O. is more welcome than he. Mr. L. is about 65 years old, but is just as spry as when he rushed into the bayonet charge at Buena Vista. Now if any one thinks we are joking about this old veteran just banter him for a wrestle, or if you want a scrap just call on him. He can dance "Chicken in the broad tray" to perfection.

—Fatsy Carson, an old colored woman, died Tuesday. She was one of the best known darkies in this part of the county. At one time her weight was 480 pounds. Her memory was perfectly wonderful. There was scarcely a person in C. O. whose age she did not know; and most all born in the last 20 years she could give both time and place of their birth. She could quote more Scripture than most any preacher. But with this extraordinary mind she died an inmate of the poor-house and was taken to her last resting-place in a pauper coffin.

—James Walker, bill poster, egg counter, porter and teller for D. G. Slaughter, was fined $5.50 for drunken and disorderly conduct. Not being able to pay the fine he was put to work on the streets. On account of the high positions he has held heretofore he wasn't placed in jail at night, but was made a trusty. Going to his mother's house that night he took a feather bed and some bed clothes, which he sold for $3 and left for Middlesboro, where he will go into the real estate business. We wish the gentleman much success.

—A short time ago there was some dissatisfaction because there was no C. O. letter in the INTERIOR JOURNAL. As we were out of business at that time, we thought to please the people and benefit the editor we would write a few lines. But of all people the correspondent has the hardest row to weed, except a district school teacher. Each often has to furnish brick without the straw. Again it is hard to find out all the titled nobility who visit a community and give each a gilt-edged compliment, and give a correct account of parties, you do not attend, telling who were beaux and belles of the evening. Often the personal border on the ridiculous. We tried to please first and third, as well as second-class, but some people would not be pleased at their step-mother dying. With charity to all and malice toward none, we bid you Good-bye.

—Gov. Patterson announces that the debt of Pennsylvania has been reduced $2,538,352 during the year.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

—The Christian church at Versailles has secured Rev. J. L. Darsie, of Norfolk, Va., to fill the pastorate made vacant by the resignation of Rev. Wallace Tharp.

—The Main Street Christian Church, Lexington, has bought the Masonic Hall property, on Walnut and Short, 187 feet front, and will build a $20,000 house of worship, to be dedicated Jan. 1, 1892.

—When Ethel May, the little daughter of the San Francisco Crockers, was baptized the other day, the water used was brought especially from the River Jordan, and the font was a basin of pure hammered gold.

—The monument to be erected to Rev. David Rice, the father of Presbyterianism in Kentucky, in McDowell cemetery, Danville, is to be 23 feet high, made of granite, and will be a substantial testimonial of the esteem in which "Father" Rice is held by the Presbyterians of all branches of the church. The monument will be placed on or near the spot where the church stood 100 years ago in which this pioneer preached.

—The Scoville Avenue Methodist church, Cleveland, O., has inaugurated a novel feature in its communion service. The pastor, Rev. H. Webb, thought it just as vulgar to require communicants to drink from the same cup as for a tea party and, on the ground of decency, good taste and politeness, he furnished each member who attended the service with a separate cup. There were 72 in all and the cups the last time would not go around, so some of them had to be washed. Some of the conservative members are inclined to grumble at the departure from orthodoxy.

A Pure Baking Powder.

A baking powder that he depended upon to be free from lime and alum is a desideratum in these days of adulterated food. So far as can be judged from the official reports, the "Royal" seems to be the only one yet found by chemical analysis to be entirely without one or the other of these substances, and absolutely pure. This, it is shown, results from the exclusive use by its manufacturers of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes which totally remove the tartrate of lime and other impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and it is used in no other baking powder except the "Royal." The manufacturers of which control the patents under which it is refined.

Dr. Edward G. Love, formerly analytical chemist for the U. S. government, who made the analysis for the New York State Board of Health in their investigation of baking powders, and whose intimate knowledge of the ingredients of all those sold in this market enables him to speak authoritatively, says of the purity, wholesomeness, and superior quality of the "Royal":

"I find the Royal Baking Powder composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substance."

Prof. Love's tests, and the recent official tests by both the United States and Canadian governments, show the Royal Baking Powder to be superior to all others in strength and leavening power. It is not only the most economical in use, but makes the purest, finest flavored and most wholesome food.

In Memory.

Robert Boone, aged 14 years, died of typhoid fever, Nov. 28, 1891. Naturally a bright and intelligent boy, a favorite with teacher and pupils.

Only a few weeks ago he was stricken with the dreaded disease and, fully realizing that the end was near, talked with his invalid sister on being reconciled to cross the dark river. It is with much regret that I give up one of my little flock and write a piece to his memory.

The dark angel of death has plucked another flower and transplanted it in the Garden of Life and Light above. Weep not, mother, father, brother and sister, for God hath given him life eternal, and he now walks the golden-paved streets of the New Jerusalem.

Relatives and friends followed him to his last resting place in the family burying ground, where all that was mortal of him was laid to rest.

Faded and gone is our dear one,
Many a tear have we shed,
Dark is the home that was once so bright.

For our dear one is dead,
We wept when we saw our darling,
Hid from our sight evermore,
Yes, wept our hearts were breaking
And bleeding at every pore.

FROM TEACHER AND PUPILS.

"Hello, Brown, you're looking badly this morning." "There is nothing very strange in that; I've just been unconscious for eight hours." "Great Heavens! man, what was the matter?" "I was asleep."—Frank Leslie's Weekly.

"Robert, dear, how do you suppose those dozens and dozens of empty bottles ever got into the cellar?"

"Why, I don't know, my dear. I never bought an empty bottle in my life."—Brooklyn Life.
